Undergraduate Academics

Ashoka offers a multidisciplinary undergraduate programme in the interest of exposing students to many different perspectives in and out of the classroom. Students get plenty of time to pursue extra-curricular and co-curricular interests, discover new passions, and perhaps, change the trajectory of their lives.

An overview of the course structure

To graduate with a Bachelor's degree, students have to secure requisite credits for courses that are broadly divided into three categories –

- Foundation Courses
- Major Courses (including Interdisciplinary Majors)
- Co-Curricular Courses

Each course carries credit points, and in order to earn their degree at the end of three years, students need to have accumulated 100 credit points. Students can also take additional courses during the three years and those working towards an Interdisciplinary Major must take a few courses more than what is required for a normal Major – in an approved interdisciplinary field.

A number of Minors are also offered at Ashoka. To qualify for a Minor, students must take certain number of courses in a subject outside their field of specialisation of the Major. In order to ease students into the programme, in their first semester, they can take only 4 courses and up to 5 courses per semester then on. Added to this are the Co-Curricular Courses, which can be taken in any semester across the three years.

Foundation Courses

Ashoka University requires students to take 9 Foundation Courses. Of these, Critical Thinking, Quantitative Reasoning and Introduction to Environmental Studies are mandatory. These courses are not formal gateways into the Major programmes. However, it is advisable to take as many of these courses as you can before you declare your Major.

Introduction to Critical Thinking

Environmental Studies
Quantitative Reasoning

The undergraduate degree

A Major is the subject in which a student will earn a Bachelor's degree – either a B.A. (Hon.) or a B.Sc. (Hon.). This can be achieved by taking either a Pure Major or an Interdisciplinary Major. The Interdisciplinary Major goes beyond the traditional boundaries of disciplines and departments to give students an opportunity to combine multiple academic interests into a single degree programme.

The following Majors are offered at Ashoka University :

Pure Majors	Interdisciplinary Majors
English	Computer Science & Entrepreneurial Leadership*
Economics*	Computer Science & Mathematics*
Psychology	Economics & Finance*
History	Economics & History*
Philosophy	English and Journalism
Sociology & Anthropology	History & International Relations
Political Science	Politics, Philosophy & Economics*
Mathematics*	Politics & Society
Computer Science*	English & Creative Writing
Physics*
Biology

Minor Courses

In addition to their undergraduate degree or Major, Ashoka encourages all its students to pursue their academic interests by way of a Minor. Opting to study courses in a subject outside their field of specialization qualifies for a Minor in that subject. We offer Minors in all the Major subjects as well.

Minors	Pure Majors
Entrepreneurial Leadership	English	Political Science
Environmental Science	Economics*	Mathematics*
International Relations	Psychology	Computer
Media Studies	History	Science*
Visual Arts	Philosophy	Physics*
Performing Arts	Sociology &	Biology
Creative Writing	Anthropology

* Students of Ashoka University who wish to Major or Minor in the following disciplines should have studied Mathematics in their senior school years (Class XI and XII).

Co-curricular Courses

Every semester, Ashoka University offers several 2-credit Co-Curricular Courses in Performing Arts, Visual Arts, and Language. The classes are conducted in the evenings once a week for two hours. Co-Curricular Courses are a mixture of practical training in an art form (e.g. dance, theatre, music, painting, ceramics) or language (e.g. French, Latin, Urdu) and critical analysis of the aesthetic, social, political, economic, and historical dimensions of the same.

Students have to take 2 Co-Curricular Courses as part of their graduation requirements; in any semester, a student can take a maximum of 1 Co-Curricular Course.

Co-Curricular Courses

Art	Performing Arts
Film	Photography
Language	Theatre

Guest Lectures

Ashoka invites renowned personalities from various walks of life to share their knowledge and expertise with its students. Scholars and thinkers such as the Dalai Lama, Madeleine Albright, Shashi Tharoor and other such eminent personalities have engaged with our students in the past. Ashoka continues to host workshops and talks that expose students to a range of ideas and perspectives.

Industry Connect

Some of them are working in the non-profit sector and are employed at the World Bank, WWF, Amnesty International, National Rural Livelihoods Mission and the UN.

The programme offers students a defining liberal education experience that blends academic rigour with a wide range of electives across disciplines.

Postgraduate Diploma in Advanced Studies and Research

Ashoka University, in compliance with UGC guidelines, offers a 3-year Bachelor's Degree programme. It also offers a year-long Postgraduate Diploma in Advanced Studies and Research (DipASR).

All undergraduates graduating with Bachelor's Degrees at the end of their third year, or who have completed by that time at least 92 credits of their degree programme, are eligible for admission into the Postgraduate Diploma in Advanced Studies and Research programme, also known as the Ashoka Scholars Programme (ASP). Students must formally apply for admission to the ASP by the end of the Monsoon semester of their third year.

The ASP offers students a defining liberal education that blends academic rigour with a wide range of elective options across a variety of subjects. These options include:

- Completing an Advanced Major: three more courses and a capstone thesis in one's Major field
- Completing a Minor
- Completing a Concentration
- Converting a Minor or previously taken elective courses into a Second Major Equivalent
- Undertaking the Ashoka Quest, a year-long social internship programme
- Taking any courses they wish, without completing any of the above options

Ashoka Quest

DipASR students can complete a year-long social internship programme called the Ashoka Quest. The Ashoka Quest partners students with organizations outside of Ashoka University and exposes them to real-life problems faced by Indian communities, ranging from sanitation challenges and gender inequality to lack of digital access and literacy.

Young Scholars Programme

Young Scholars Programme is a unique summer residential programme which introduces high school students to the idea of a liberal education. It is a certified, week-long, residential programme where students are exposed to different disciplines through experiential and hands-on learning.

The programme consists of a range of activities including lectures, workshops,

Mentors: Academic and Career Support

When students come to Ashoka, they will work closely with a faculty member who will help them design their academic pathway. Under the guidance of their Faculty Mentor, they are better prepared to handle the rigorous coursework, plan their schedule wisely and make informed choices.

In the second year, students are assigned Academic Advisors (AA). An Academic Advisor helps them devise the most favorable and productive trajectory for their academic life at Ashoka. Based on their educational interests, their AA can help them decide between a Pure Major or an Interdisciplinary Major, choose courses that suit their schedule and work towards an academic experience that is not just lucrative but creatively fulfilling. Academic Advisors also play a significant role in helping them decide the best opportunities after graduation.

Student Support

The Ashoka Centre for Well Being (ACWB) is our one-of-a-kind on-campus counselling centre dedicated to the care and well-being of the Ashoka fraternity. It comprises of trained psychotherapists and mental health counselors who offer a range of services from individual counselling sessions to group workshops.

Sunny Summers: Studying at UC Berkeley

I always considered a summer abroad distant dream. Last summer, however, a dream became a reality when I spent my summer at University of California, Berkeley. For two months, I lived in the same awe and amazement that I had always felt when I heard about other students' experiences studying abroad.

I took two courses - Industrial Organisation (Economics) and Person in Big Data (Psychology). Taught by brilliant professors whose methods of teaching were simply inspiring. The courses were brilliant and mind gripping to say the least. Each class was exciting and though course load was relatively high due to the time constraint, it was an exhilarating experience, never feeling like a burden.

On campus, there was a vast international community where students from almost all over the world were represented. Unique communities were formed that we all got to be part of. This is where I got to learn the most: from people living different realities, harbouring different perspectives, with experiences of different cultures/countries, from professors and their expertise, from neighbors, friends, locals and more.

Traveling in the sunny state, making friends with people whose mother tongue I did not speak, attending parties, cooking my food—or in other words, being an adult—made the summer abroad experience so special.

Rehan is a current third year student who spent the summer of 2016 at University of California, Berkeley.

'Shakespeare in London' at King's College

After having studied William Shakespeare's plays for four semesters at Ashoka University, I decided to do a course called 'Shakespeare in London' at King's College, London in the summer of 2016. At Ashoka, not only were we taught to tease out major themes in Shakespeare's original work(s), but also made aware of their Indian adaptations. This served as an insight into how Shakespeare had been globalised.

However, in a class of many American students in London, it was difficult to put forth the importance of adapting Shakespeare. This was because they believed that adaptations dumbed down the originals.

We studied three plays through the course and watched an adaptation of each in the theatres at South Bank. Standing for three hours to watch Macbeth at the Globe Theatre, and having the actors walk by your side to make an entrance on stage was an experience that taught me about the performative aspects of Shakespeare. When asked to wrap up our class with presentations by all students on "Anything to do with Shakespeare," I chose to drive home my point about the importance and sophistication of adaptations of Shakespeare's works that helped me understand him better. I presented on "Shakespeare and Bollywood."

Studying in London was not just a chance to explore the city, but an experience that I cherish. I got the chance to develop a new perspective both, inside and outside the classroom.
